

Purpose-built threat protection for Business and Healthcare

Businesses around the globe depend on Vexira® to defend their private networks from malicious attack. Vexira is the industry leading choice when absolute protection is demanded. No other security vendor offers protection solutions that are specifically tailored to resolve the daily threat protection challenges you have. Businesses are one of the core markets we serve. Each and everyday we work with network administrations and technical support staff to help them defend their private networks and public access computers from viruses, spyware and other Internet-based threats.

Your employees need a safe and protected environment to work. Vexira has complete endpoint threat protection that far exceeds “consumer grade” products. Vexira is not and never has been a consumer grade product. Our sole focus is defending entire networks from client to server from threats with aggressive protection that keeps your employees working uninterrupted.

Vexira protects businesses and healthcare organizations throughout the United States and world.

“Our law firm uses Vexira Antivirus to successfully defend against computer virus attacks. We have found that Central Command provides unparalleled customer support and after sale services. Their Emergency Virus Response Team is proactive to responding to the latest virus threats and the Vexira Antivirus software is performing well.”
